

i Recovery Tips ?

You made it through your root canal!
We made this little guide to help you heal.

 Numbness of your lip, tongue or palate may last for several hours. Try not to chew gum, eat, or drink hot liquids until the anesthetic has worn off so you don't accidentally bite or burn yourself. If you need a snack, stick to something soft and room temperature. If you feel like your bite is not correct after the numbness wears off call us immediately for an appointment to have it adjusted as this can contribute to postoperative pain.

 Medications: See the following page for information about medications.

 It is normal to be sore and achy for a few days after treatment. This can usually be controlled with over the counter medication, but sometimes prescription painkillers will be needed (see the next page for info on medicine). A tooth treated with a root canal may feel different for quite some time following root canal therapy.

 Please call us if you experience any significant pain or pain that is not well-managed by medication. We can help! Please also let us know if you experience any significant swelling which could be an indication of infection, or if your tooth breaks.

 Can I eat like normal? Try not to not chew or bite on your tooth that was treated today until you have it restored with a crown by your regular dentist. If possible, chew only on the opposite side of your mouth. You should especially avoid eating anything sticky or hard with that tooth.

 How should I take care of my mouth? You can brush and floss your teeth as you normally would.

 What's next? Until you come back to see us for a more permanent restoration, the tooth that just had a root canal is at risk for breaking. The next step of your treatment will mostly likely consist of a post or filling of some type, plus a crown to preserve and protect your tooth. It is imperative that you return for this in a timely manner (usually one month unless otherwise directed). If you feel like your temporary filling has been lost call us as this must be replaced ASAP.
